

Groups Who Support Overturning the FCC's Media Ownership Rules

Actor's Equity Association
AFL-CIO
American Academy of Pediatrics
American Federation of Musicians
American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA)
American Library Association
Capitol Broadcasting (John Goodmon, CEO)
Center for Creative Community
Center for Digital Democracy
Children Now
Code Pink, Women for Peace
Common Cause
Communications Workers of America (CWA)
Consumer Federation of America (CFA)
Consumers Union (CU)
Department of Professional Employees, AFL-CIO
Directors Guild of America
FAIR (Fairness and Accuracy in Reporting)
Family Research Council
Free Press
Future of Music Coalition
International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees
International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (Broadcast Division)
Leadership Conference on Civil Rights (LCCR)
Media Access Project (MAP)
Media Research Center
Move On
NAACP
National Asian Pacific American Legal Consortium (NAPALC)
National Association of Black Journalists
National Association of Black Owned Broadcasters
National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, CWA
National Association of Hispanic Journalists
National Congress of American Indians
National Council of Churches
National Council of La Raza
National Organization for Women (NOW)
National Partnership for Women and Families
National PTA

-- more --

National Rifle Association (NRA)
National Urban League
National Writers Guild, CWA
National Writers Union (UAW 1981)
Parents Television Council
Prometheus Radio Project
Public Relations Society of America
Rainbow/PUSH Coalition
Screen Actors Guild
Traditional Values Coalition
United Church of Christ
United States Conference of Catholic Bishops
Writers Guild of America, East
Writers Guild of America, West

Notable individuals who have opined against the FCC's media rules:

William Safire
Barry Diller
John Goodman (CEO, Capitol Broadcasting)
Frank Blethen (Publisher, Seattle Times)
Ted Turner